Who Owns The Market Today?

Have you asked yourself, who really 'Owns the Market' today? Ultimately, the local economy is being challenged by big nationals, multi-nationals and the internet, particularly from aggregator sites and online shopping. Stuart Murray is author of the book, 'Own the Market' and will share a proven system for empowering your local economy. During his interactive presentation, he will give examples of where this is working and how you can benefit. There will also be opportunities to get a free copy of his book plus there are free sponsored places into the system for the right businesses.

Stuart Murray

Stuart is passionate about helping the independent retail sector and local economy, including local clubs and charities. He is dedicated to bringing about some fundamental changes in our local economy. Having immersed himself in an emerging public company since 2013, he is well placed to help empower the local economy using an innovative new platform that is launching right across Europe.
